In: Novice Quests, Quests, English Fishing Contest Share This article has a quick guide found here. The quick guides provide a brief summary of the steps required for completion. Fishing Contest is a quest in which you must win the friendship of two dwarf brothers by getting a fishing trophy for them. Then they allow you to use their passage under the mountain. Official description The house of mountain gwarves would be an ideal way to cross the White Wolf Mountain safely. However, Dwarves are not too fond of strangers. Austri and Vestri will let you cross the tunnel under the mountain, however, if you can bring them a trophy. The trophy is the prize of the annual Hemenster fishing competition. Golden Dust Walkthrough To begin with, talk to Austri or Vestri, dwarves who are stationed at the entrances to the cave on both sides of the White Wolf Mountain; Austri is just north of the Taverley lodestone. A conversation ensues where you ask what is going on through their caves; they will categorically refuse to tell you, saying that the tunnels are only for their friends. Ask them if you could become friends, and after thinking about some, they ask you to win and collect the coveted gold trophy from the fishing contest in the western city of Hemenster; they have an entry pass, but unfortunately the dwarves don't make good fishermen. If you agree, they will be happy to switch to the fishing pass for entry into the contest. The Champion squeezing through the door. The quickest way to get to Hemenster is to use the lodestone stone from the village of Seers and follow the path southwest, until you are outside the guild entrance (or you can use a combat bracelet to teleport just outside the guild). Enter the house right in front of the guild and talk to Grandpa Jack. He tells you how he won the fishing contest for four consecutive years, fishing in the right place near the exit pipe. He also recommends fishing with red vine worms as bait, found in McGrubor wood, and that you should get garlic to get rid of the vampire that claimed the fishing spot as his. Red vines near the fairy ring. To get the vine worms, go to McGrubor's Wood, a gated forest west of Seers' Village, and directly north of Grandpa Jack. The front door is on the south side, but when trying to enter, a forester will send you back angry, claiming it as private territory. Fortunately, there is a loose railing in the northern part of the woods, on the eastern part of the fence. Go around the forest and cross it. Once inside, level 33 guard dogs attack if you get close enough to them. Head to the western area of the woods and locate the red vines, west of the fairy ring and near the fence; dig up and collect at least three red vineworms for the contest. Stranger Sinister Place the garlic in one of the exit pipes. Get out of McGrubor wood by the loose railing and return to Hemenster. Once there, show Morris your fishing pass. You're must pay a one-time entry fee of 5 coins to Bonzo, the competition judge. If you start fishing before placing the garlic in the pipes, you will only get raw sardines, which makes you lose the competition abroad. Talk to the sinister stranger to change fishing grounds, but refuses, so he must be lured away. As vampires don't like garlic, put the garlic in the wall pipes next to it. He ends up complaining about a horrible smell and agrees to change places with you. The fishing competition for giant carp. Talk to Bonzo or try to fish for you to start the contest. While having the worms, continue fishing while you catch raw giant carp, until the whistle rings to end the competition; you will automatically hand over your catch to Bonzo. Because your fish is so unique and great, you will be announced the winner of the fishing contest! You are congratulated and rewarded with the fishing trophy. To complete your quest, return to Austri or Vestri and give them the trophy. The dwarves will be happy to see gold and will allow you to use their underground passage when you please. Then tell me you want to be friends. The dwarf wants to trust you first. Houe Question. The dwarf wants to have the first prize of fishing competition in Hemenster, but the dwarves are not so good at fishing. He wants you to win the game and give yourself a ticket. In the final message, he will tell you not to forget the entrance fee. Now we have to go to the woods of McGrubor, the forest west of Seers' Village. You can enter the north of the forest, there are some loose fence rails through which you can pass. There are level 33 guard dogs. Here in the western part in the red vine dig for worms. Take about three. Go to Hemenster. It is west of the Rangeds Guild, north of Ardougne and southwest of the village of Seers. Against the lake is a fenced pasture, where competition takes place. To the northeast of the competition field is Grandpa Jack's cottage, stop here first and talk to him. Jack tells you that the best fish to pipe is to catch. Now, talk to Morris at the door of the playground and show him your ticket to get in. Talk to Bonzo here. He wants five GP. Give me. He tells you you can go to willow fishing. Grandfather Jack, the guy who lives in the cottage northeast of the game, can tell you that the best fish is near the pipe. You have the tip to scare the vampire so he doesn't steal your fish. For that, you have to put garlic in the pipe on the vampire. You do that. The vampire is now fleeing to your old place in willow. Fish near the hose and you'll have a carp. Talk to Bonzo. You won and you got the cup. Give them to the dwarf for your reward.
